Filmmaker Lalange Snow photographed and interviewed 14 members of 1st Battalion The Royal Regiment of Scotland before they were sent to Afghanistan, after three months' service, (A).....

The series, titled "We Are The Not Dead", is meant to expose how war changes a person, (B)..... , the trauma literally written on their faces. War changes people, and the soldiers' faces show a glimpse of the toll that fighting in Afghanistan takes on the troops.

As you scroll through the following photos, take a look at the physical change that is so evidently captured. You will see the emotional burden experienced by the men. Soldiers must learn how to not only be brave, (C)..... This takes its toll, and can cause depression, alcoholism, and suicide among those who have been deployed.

In each first photo you may notice signs of nervousness and uncertainty in the eyes of the soldiers. (D)..... , almost as if the soldiers are saying: "I'm right here in it," with hardened looks that show self preservation. The last photos show a mixture of relief, regret, and fear. (E)....., and no words can truly help anyone on the outside understand exactly what's going on in the inside — this personal transition for each individual soldier.

While there was likely intense suffering during those months, the images show (F)....., and knowing they are still human. Others appear to be fully broken; they are displaced.
